THANK YOU!

The Palais Royal "buver" of the Dress Goods Department is pleased to announce that yesterday's sales were the largest on record here. In thanking friends and patrons for this practical appreciation of the new dress goods stock, we recognize that it is only those with means, good judgment and good taste who buy Spring and Summer Dress Goods this early in the season, and, therefore, feel justified in claiming our 1895 Stock superior in every respect.

ETA well-known reciety lady who selected six organdy dresses yesterday said: "I always make selections early in the season, and compliment you on having the prettiest styles in Washington.

ETA leading modists said:—"You certainly have the best variety of Crepous in town, and those you are selling at $2.47 are equal to any I have seen elsewhere at $3 yard."

BRILLIANT SCENE.

Masquerade Ball of the Washingto Saengerbund Last Night. Rarely, if ever, has the Washington Light Infantry Armory presented the scene which it did at the annual masquerae ball of the Washington Saengerbund last evening. Myriads of lights studded the ceiling, which was already snow white, in anticipation of the ice carnival, and flags were plentifully used in draping the pillars and walls of the big room. At one end of the room were the tables for the use of those who desired to patronize the truly

German supper, which was served after 10 o'clock. Promptly at 9 o'clock the grand march began, and the floor was filled with a conglomerate mass of color, which lasted until the time for unmasking, which took place at 11 o'clock.

The prizes aggregated $100, and there were a great many with the expressed determination of getting a lump of the prize money. The costumes were varied, and a great deal of expense and pains was manifest in the get-up of a large number of those on the floor. Four young ladies, representing the press of the city, presented quite a unique appearance, their dresses being made entirely out of the four leading Washington newspapers. Miss Belie Metheny, of course the pretitest of these, represented The Star, Mrs. L. Babcock the Times, Miss Wood the News and Miss Nelle Smith the Post. Another group which was quite conspicuous was that representing the four seasons, and was made up of Spring, Emma Helnrichs; Summer, Anna Shoenborne; Autumn, Tricia Shoenborne, and Winter, Mrs. Rudolph Schneider, as was also that of six snow girls. Besides these were Indians, flower girls, imps, clowns, beggars, coons, tramps, bootblacks, peddlers, sailors, soldiers, stately courtiers and dames of the olden time, and, in fact, every conceivable shape and form that was to be thought of had its representation on the floor.

In one corner of the room an immense cage had heen erected, and in this, as Mr. B. F. Schubert informed the audience in an eloquent speech, were to be seen some of the most comical things which it had ever been their good fortune to witness. His statement was borne out by the anties of the group which succeeded his speech. This group consisted of Paul Helimann, Henry Dolda, Fred. Grieb, John Stelmmets, Alexander George, John Hanft, Dr. Czara and Rudolph Thiele, while a large mastiff also played an important part in the subsequent proceedings. As the lecturer announced, Hagenback's circus had been brought from Paris at an immense amount of trouble and expense, and for fifteen minutes the group services of the grain of the prizes for l

That the public is becoming somewhat tired of the whole Trilby business is indisputable, but that everybody hasn't lost interest in the subject is shown by the throngs of visitors to the Veerhoff galleries to see Constant Mayer's representaleries to see Constant Mayer's representa-tion of Du Maurier's many-sided heroine, now on exhibition there. Of course, opin-ions as to the interpretation vary, accord-ing to the various opinions held as to the character of the subject, but to the ma-jority, so far as expressions indicate, the effort is rather disappointing than other-wise. Still, the opportunity to see it should not be lost. It will remain on exhibition during the week.

In Indian Who Has Made a Big Fore

Matthew Splitlog, chief of the Seneca nation, Indian territory, is at the Hotel Em-rich, with his son Thomas, who is second councilman at home, on business connected with the government and his nation. The chief is remarkable for his physical strength and ability to attend to many impertant interests. He was born in Canada in 1813, and, with the Northern Wyandottes of Michigan, went to Ohio, and then west, where he and others were located under treaty at Wyandotte, Kan. He built, before going, several boats on the Detroit river, among which was a steam (and saw mill) at Wyandotte, Kan., per (and saw mill) at Wyandotte, Kan., perschally doing the work, and constructed the Splitlog railroad between Joplin and Neosho, Mo. He is a natural mechanic in wood and iron, as are also his sons, Thomas and Henry, and all of them are regarded as fine engineers. The chief became wealthy through his real estate at Wyandotte, Kan., and is using a portion of his wealth to ald his people. He has no patience with unpregressive Indians.
